

10 New Orlando Venues for Spring Meetings and Events

New conference spaces, eateries, drinking spots, and more for events and entertaining this season.

Here's a look at the best new Orlando restaurants, corporate event venues, hotels, conference centers, and private and party rooms to open this spring. These new and renovated Orlando venues can accommodate groups large or small for private and corporate events, conferences, meetings, weddings, business dinners, teambuilding activities, cocktail parties, and more.

1. Tin Roof

Tin Roof is part of a Nashville-based chain of “live music joints.” It opened at I-Drive 360 in early January. The 5,000-square-foot restaurant and bar seats 155 people inside and 55 on a patio. The venue has a small stage that hosts live music nightly, varying from rock to alternative to country. The menu leans toward Southern-inspired cuisine, including shrimp and grits, baby back ribs, and a fried chicken sandwich, but also offers lighter fare such as an ahi tuna salad and a smoked salmon sandwich. The restaurant is available for buyouts and accommodates 360 people for receptions.
